

Desexed dogs

Dogs that can breed

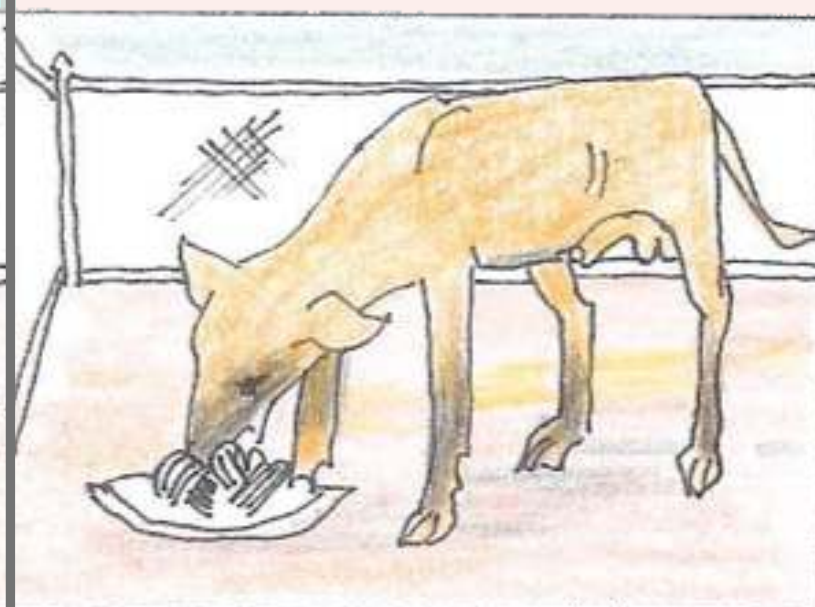

Desexed dogs are better pets

Breeding dogs are more cheeky

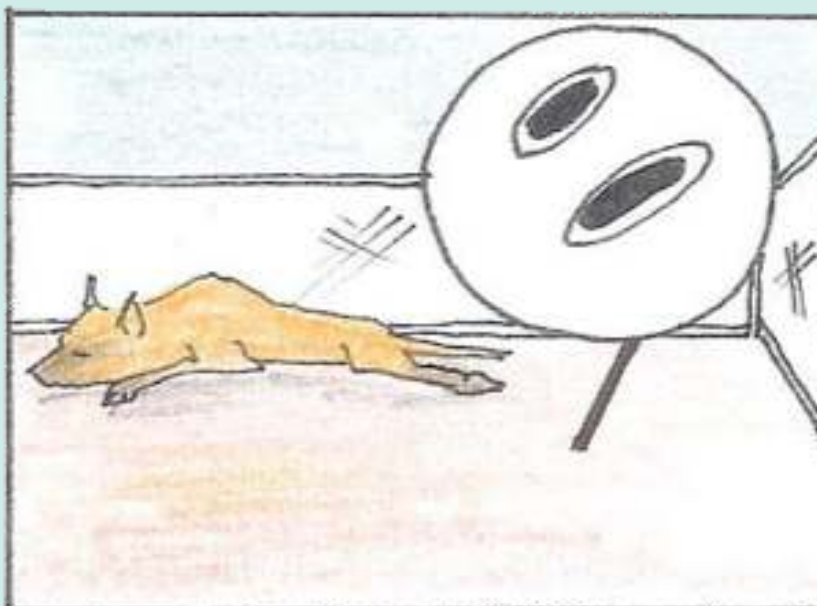

They also cause more humbug

Desexed dogs eat less and stay fatter

Breeding dogs need more food

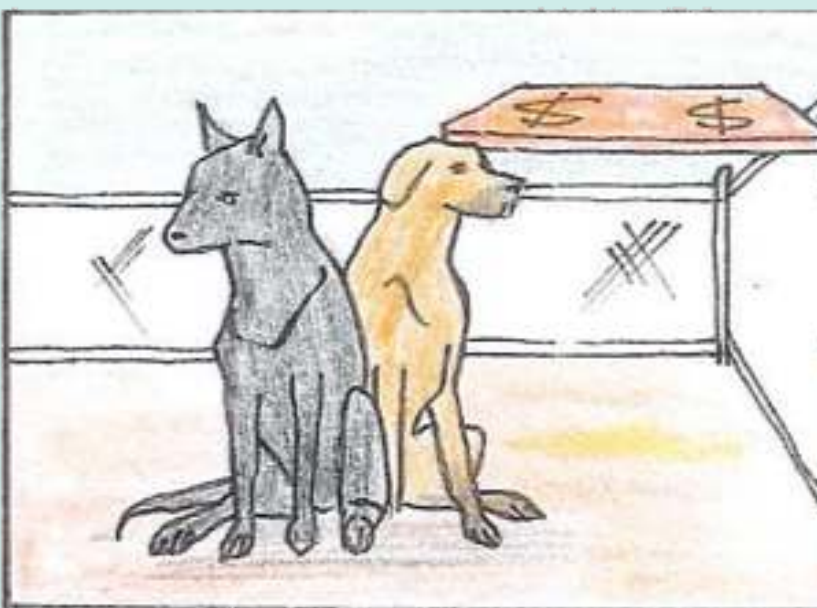

Desexed dogs have less germs and worms

Breeding dogs and their pups put lots of germs into yards

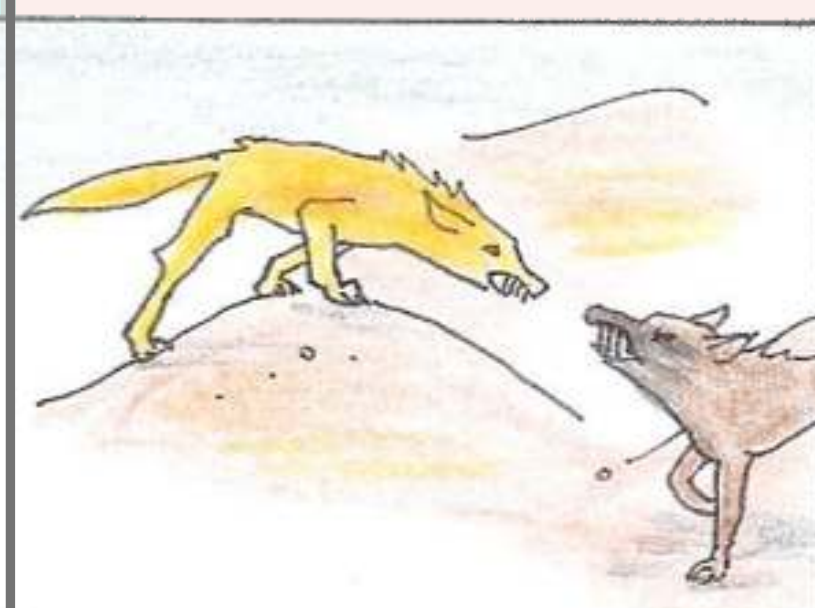

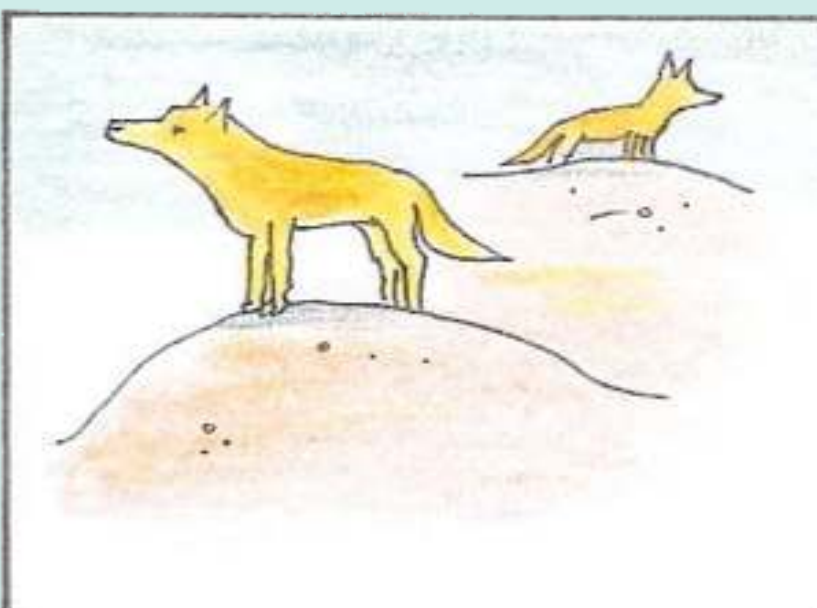

This means less germs in the yard

Registration fees are less for dogs that are desexed

Breeding dogs cost more money to feed and register

Desexed dogs do not cause problems for dingoes

Breedings dogs can mate with dingoes, and make cross-bred dogs that cause trouble

Illustrations by Danita Phelan Art. Text by Dr Samantha Phelan.